

APPLICATION FOR ENDORSEMENT of a resuscitation skills course

The Royal New Zealand College of General Practitioners (RNZCGP) requires all members to maintain their resuscitation skills as part of the Continuing Professional Development (CPD) programme for Fellows, the General Practice Education Programme and the Division of Rural Hospital Medicine (DRHM) training programme.

Resuscitation skills training must be undertaken through a College-endorsed provider. The approved course must meet the RNZCGP Standard for Resuscitation Courses (please see our website for more information).

Doctors on different programmes have different minimum requirements for resuscitation skills training:

- Fellows on the general practice CPD programme must, at a minimum, hold a current certificate at the equivalent level of a New Zealand Resuscitation Council (NZRC) Certificate of Resuscitation and Emergency Care (CORE) Skills course, with the content as outlined in the RNZCGP Standard (criterion 2.2). This is a minimum requirement and all doctors are expected to train to the level appropriate to their situation.
- Fellows on the DRHM CPD programme must hold a current certificate at the equivalent level of the NZRC CORE Advanced course. The DRHM CPD programme also has requirements for additional emergency management courses.
- Registrars on the General Practice Education Programme must, at a minimum, hold a current certificate at the equivalent level of a NZRC CORE Skills course, with the content as outlined in the RNZCGP Standard (criterion 2.2), for the duration of the training programme. However, in order to obtain Fellowship, the registrar must, at a minimum, hold a current certificate at the equivalent level of the NZRC CORE/Immediate course.
- Registrars on the DRHM training programme must hold a current certificate at the equivalent level of the NZRC CORE Advanced course. Registrars on this programme must, in addition, complete courses in Emergency Management.

NOTE: The College recognises resuscitation skills certificates as 'current' if they have been obtained in the last three years.

Courses are normally expected to be a minimum of four hours duration for a NZRC CORE Skills (or equivalent) course, or eight hours duration for a NZRC CORE Advanced course (with expected reading preparation of a minimum of four hours in all cases).

This resuscitation endorsement application form is for individuals or organisations who are either developing a programme or who have an existing programme that they wish to have considered for RNZCGP endorsement.

Should you wish to apply for College endorsement, please complete the form as thoroughly as possible. Questions marked with a * are desirable components but are not required. Endorsement shall last for a period of three years once your application has been accepted.

Please note that if you are not offering a certified NZRC CORE course, you are required to submit a copy of your course content for review, as well as a sample certificate.

The College reserves the right to approve, decline or negotiate changes to a proposed programme as it sees fit and to review or audit endorsed courses on a regular basis.

Please send your application and supporting material to:
